Technical Auditing and Assessment

The context

From multi-national companies with complex international supply chains to smaller businesses facing increasing manufacturing costs, more companies are looking to lower-cost vendors in countries with less developed quality, sourcing, manufacturing and delivery processes. This requires companies to maintain consistent, acceptable standards while working with a range of vendors across a variety of territories.

The challenge

Companies want to know, before placing an order, that their chosen manufacturer has the necessary infrastructure, systems, processes and capabilities to fulfil it. They also need to ensure that local and international standards of quality and safety are consistently maintained across all of their international vendors, and throughout the manufacturing and delivery process.

Ideally every link in the supply chain should have Quality Management Systems (QMS) compliant with the necessary standards such as ISO and API (American Petroleum Institute). In reality this is unlikely, and in many cases smaller companies may lack the resources to implement and maintain the required quality and safety standards themselves.

Our service

We can help you gain a complete understanding of vendor capabilities through a systematic and independent vendor assessment. Our reliable, accredited auditors carry out internal audits, allowing companies and their vendors to meet quality standards without the cost of retaining an internal auditor on staff.

While the criteria are tailored to suit your needs, audits typically focus on a vendor's systems, practices and capabilities. Audits may include pre-contract assessment and compliance testing to international standards, for example quality (ISO 9001) health and safety (ISO 18001) environmental management (ISO 14001) and laboratories (ISO 17025). We also provide guidance for corrective and preventative actions in light of an audit's findings and follow-up assessments to confirm the effective implementation of those actions.

We also provide Approved Vendor Lists audits, allowing you to maintain a current list of approved suppliers in preparation for future projects.
